Miss Hall's Is Host To 177 Boys For Pleasant Evening Of Dancing

by Jerry Sullivan

At 5:00 p.m. December 6, 177 abnormally well-groomed seniors, juniors, and sophomores boarded buses to Pittsfield, Massachusetts, for Deerfield's annual dance with Miss Hall's School. Arrangements for the dance were made by this year's senior dance committee, headed by Jeff Kriendl and including Bill Blanchard, Josh Carlisle, Phelps Carter, Tom Diehl, Bill Eddy, Peter Gabel, Norm Gile, Peter Gilmore, John Heath, Rick Herrick, Dave Higgins, Carter Jahncke, Peter Pattenhill, Bayard Russell, Steve Stavrides, Rick Sterne, and Dave Wheeler. The Messrs. Burdick, Clark, Cushman, Knight, and Lee accompanied the boys to Miss Hall's.

"Grace Notes" Entertain

After arriving at Miss Hall's at 6:30, each boy was introduced to his date and spent the remaining half hour before dinner getting acquainted. A tempting meal of chicken a la king was served, and after dinner the dance combo swung into tune and the dancing started. During the intermission the "Grace Notes," a group of eight Miss Hall's girls, entertained by singing several well-received numbers, among them "I've Got Pleny o' Nothin," from Porgy And Bess and "On the Street Where You Live," from My Fair Lady. The latter was sung in French. The dance ended at 10:30, all too soon for everyone concerned, and the boys boarded the buses which took them back to Deerfield.

Christmas Banquet Will End Fall Term; Festivities To Be Held In Old Gymnasium

Each year the fall term is brought to a festive close by the Christmas banquet, which will take place on the evening of December 17 in the Old Gymnasium. Excellent food, athletic awards, and Christmas spirit will combine to revive students after two rigorous weeks of testing. The most obvious attraction is the menu, which will consist of the traditional fruit cup, a thick steak for everyone, and ice cream. The singing of carols, led by Mr. Schuler and accompanied by the Band, will be next on the program.

Athletic Awards Will Follow

After the meal the fall athletic awards are to be presented. The coach of each varsity team will first outline the achievements of his squad in the past season, then pass out the letters, and finally award the trophies which recognize individuals of outstanding determination and ability.

Climax of the evening will be the presentation of gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Boyden. Each year the student body contributes funds not only to buy personal presents for the Boydens but also to provide them with a gift for their favorite charity.

Circus Will Form Backdrop

Since the Dining Hall cannot accomodate the full contingent of faculty, wives, and students, the Old Gym must be used for the banquet. This year the focal point of its decorations, the mural background for the stage, will be a group of figures representing a circus scene. This is

Public Affairs Symposium Meets To Debate Government Problems

by Ben McNitt

This evening the Deerfield Public Affairs Symposium will be initiated by the Headmaster's welcoming address to participants in the two-day affair concerning contemporary government. Preparations for the event were concluded by Mr. Crow, general chairman, and the Messrs. Harwell and Morsman.

Governor John L. H. Chafee of Rhode Island will keynote the Symposium this evening. A football and lacrosse letterman in the Class of 1940 at Deerfield, he later left Yale to join the Marines during World War II, afterwards completing his college studies at Yale and graduating from the Harvard Law School in 1950. Later that year he was recalled to military service with the Marines in Korea. Gov. Chafee first gained political office in 1956, being elected to the Rhode Island legislature, a position he retained in the '58 and '60 campaigns. As leader of the Republican Party Assembly he was a natural candidate for the 1962 gubernatorial race, which he won.

Students Question Panelists

Each of the panel discussions will open with the moderator's brief address preceding a statement by every panel member concerning the topic. Students will then address pertinent questions to the panel. The meetings will be concluded with each member delivering a critique of the discussion. "The future of the states in the Federal system," tonight's topic, will be the first of the informative, non-partisan discussions. Saturday morning the second panel will convene to discuss "Public service — its problems, frustrations and rewards." The purpose of this panel, and of the entire Symposium, is to focus student attention on government and to stimulate them to dedicate all or at least part of their lives to public service.

Examine Foreign Policy

Distinguished alumni who have served the nation in the field of foreign service will comprise Saturday afternoon's panel and will deliberate upon "A non-partisan approach to foreign policy." A projected view of America's future motives and methods in diplomatic relations is expected to emerge from the discussion.

The Symposium will conclude with a discussion significant to the understanding of our present Federal republic. "Can Congress as it is now constituted legislate effectively for the 20th century?" Eight panelists, including five from the House of Representatives, will develop the salient ideas concurrent with this resolve. Government students will serve as escorts to the returning alumni throughout the two-day affair and will be afforded the opportunity to gain a more acute knowledge of politics.

Coverage of this important series of panels will be by the Associated Press, "The New York Times," and local papers and radio stations.

Norman M. Thomas To Address School

Mr. Norman M. Thomas, America's foremost Socialist, will speak to the student body and faculty Thursday, January 16. The subject of his talk will be civil rights, one of the most controversial topics of our time. Mr. Thomas, who is the grandfather of John Daniel Friebe '60, was invited to speak here by Mr. Robert Crow. As former head of the American Socialist Party, Mr. Thomas gained nationwide recognition because of his repeated candidacy for the office of President of the United States.

Mr. Thomas received a Doctorate in Letters from Princeton University and is Chairman of the International Labor Research Institute. He is also a member of the Presbyterian ministry and has presided over congregations in New York City and Chicago.

College Entrance Exams Measure Seniors' Ability

Saturday, December 7, the Deerfield seniors took the College Entrance Examination Board tests. In the morning the three-hour Scholastic Aptitude Test, designed to measure the student's ability in verbal and mathematical skills, was given. Achievement Tests, lasting one hour each and covering a variety of subjects, were given in the afternoon. These try to determine the knowledge a student has in specific fields.

Glee Club Holds Final Auditions

The 81 boys, including previous members, who will make up this year's Glee Club will be selected from the final tryouts by Dr. J. Clement Schuler and Mr. Peter Hindle. A preliminary selection was made from the first tryouts, and a second audition was held in the Barn, first and second bases singing December 5 and first and second tenors December 6. In this final tryout each boy was judged on his ability to sing the chorus of "Lord Jeffery Amherst."

The boys who succeed in obtaining a place in the Glee Club will have their first rehearsal shortly after the Christmas vacation. These boys will be looking forward to the Bushnell Concert in Hartford, Connecticut, April 11, which will include Choate, Deerfield, Hotchkiss, Loomis, and Taft.

Roy M. Hayes

Freshmen and sophomores who had Roy Mitchell Hayes as their Latin teacher will remember him especially for two characteristics: his kindness and his understanding. Head of the Latin Department since 1957, Mr. Hayes took a personal interest in his students seldom exhibited by teachers of more recent generations. Although the classroom was the only area in which he himself could supervise the development of his pupils, Mr. Hayes loved to follow their progress in all their activities and would often appear on the Lower Level in the afternoons to watch them practice with their teams. He and Mrs. Hayes welcomed the boys to their home not only for breakfast on Sundays, but also for consultation or a friendly visit at any time.

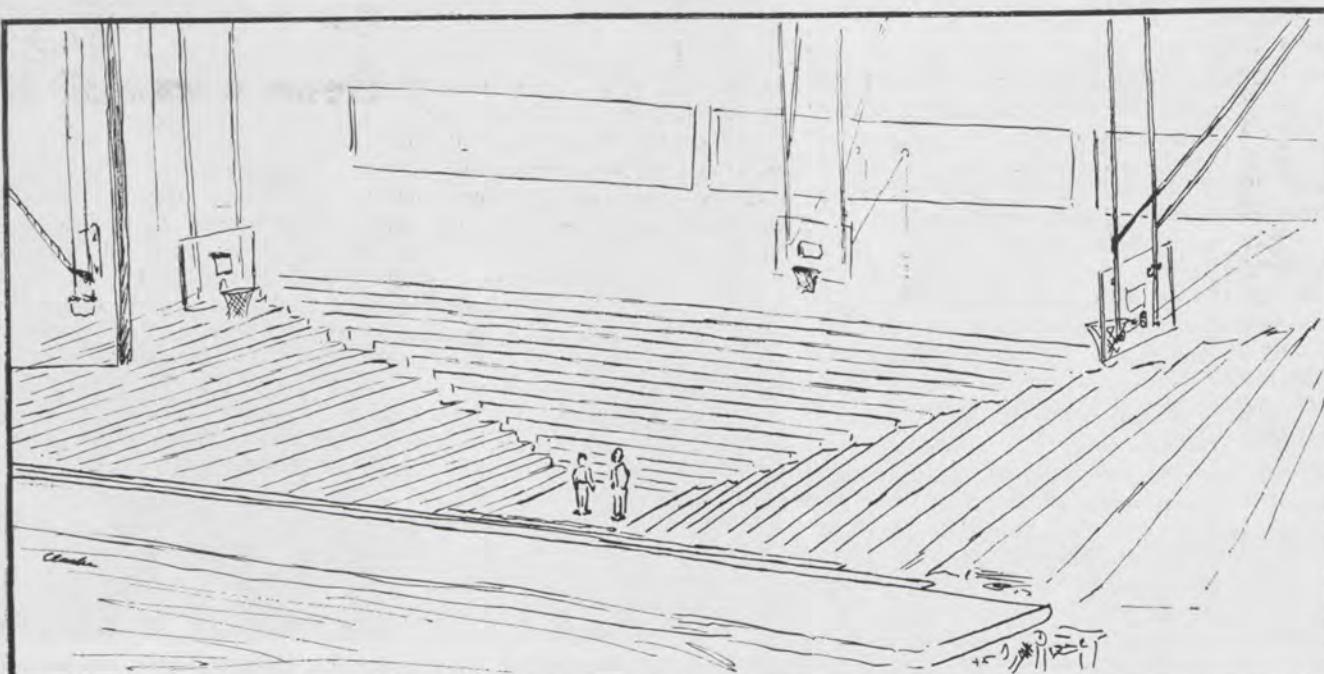

Mr. Hayes's death at the age of 71 last Friday, December 6, was an unexpected tragedy for many, but for him it was merely the fulfillment of his wish to teach until he died. And teach was what he had done for 44 fruitful years, following attainment of his A.B. at Colby in 1918 and his service as a sergeant in the Meuse-Argonne area in 1919. Thirty-seven of those years he spent as principal of three Maine high schools and of the Ricker Classical Institute and Junior College. All of those years he spent happily with his wife, Ruth Carnegie, whom he married in 1919, and with whom he took an active part in the community life of every town in which they lived.

THE SCROLL wishes to express its heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Hayes and to their two children, Mrs. Jean Hayes Wassell and Mr. James Carnegie Hayes.

School Spirit

School spirit is an intangible quality, as ephemeral as the cheering at a football game or as long-lasting as a dormitory donated by parents of Deerfield boys. It may exist as the pride of a senior showing his school to the parents of a prospective student, or it may be found in the motives of an alumnus who wanted to be buried near the Academy. No better example can be found than the arrival today of 24 alumni and friends to participate in the Deerfield Public Affairs Symposium.

THE SCROLL expresses deep gratitude for this loyalty and extends a hearty welcome to them on behalf of the Academy.

Maybe we shouldn't have ordered "large!"

Let Us Continue

The horrifying and tragic death of John F. Kennedy has left a gaping hole in the spirit of America. As President, Mr. Kennedy's political record was not yet extraordinary, and his policies were questioned by both Democrats and Republicans, but his greatness lay in the spirit of nationalism which he instilled in every patriotic American. His youthful vitality and much-mimicked Boston accent animated his every speech and intensified his every appeal. He spoke to the individual, not to the group; he spoke to the citizen, not to the nation. And so because of this personal warmth and attraction, his death leaves every man with an intangible feeling of loneliness and insignificance.

Yet, rivers still flow, snow still falls, and troubles throughout the world still exist. Life, and America, must go on. Lyndon B. Johnson has ascended to the nation's highest office with a broad and experienced background. A workman, a printer's devil, a teacher, a law clerk, a Congressman, a Senator, and a Vice-President, the new President is well-equipped to face the weighty problems confronting him; but he needs our support. Democracy denotes a government in which the masses rule, and without the unwavering confidence of his people, President Johnson will be handcuffed in his fight to conquer the hates and prejudices which took the life of his beloved predecessor. He needs our assistance just as we require his leadership.

So let us overcome our grief and mourning for what is the past, and let us concentrate our efforts on what will be the future. Early in 1961 President Kennedy cried, "Let us begin," and in the next three years we began. Now in the wake of his greatness it is our duty to him and to ourselves to follow President Johnson when he urges, "Let us continue."

Movies

January 8 — "Escape from Zahrain"

This lively melodrama combines plenty of action and adventure in unfolding a contemporary tale of revolution in Arab oil country.

January 11 — "The Great Escape"

Steve McQueen and James Garner are but a few of the many stars in this 1963 Cinemascope and color release. War prisoners in Nazi Germany who are notorious for attempted escapes are herded into a new compound from which escape is theoretically impossible.

An Apology

THE SCROLL wishes to apologize for an inadvertent omission in the article on the Thorn House in the October 26, 1963 issue.

The Thorn house was purchased by Mrs. Henry N. Flynt, and it has been restored at her expense and under her personal direction. In this and in other cases, her gifts and direction have been an outstanding contribution in the preservation of the Old Street, for which those interested in our historical background are most appreciative.

Continuity

The assassination of President John F. Kennedy has brought sorrow to the entire nation and has dampened, regardless of party affiliation, this 1963 Christmas. Yet, one beneficial result of this catastrophe is the demonstration of the continuity within the American political system.

President Kennedy died and 99 minutes later America had a new Commander-in-Chief, sworn in without deliberation or violence. President Lyndon B. Johnson has collected the suddenly-hewn threads of government and is in the process of reconnecting them. He has been briefed on all subjects vital to the perpetuation of a unified country and has established his position on American policy, defending the United Nations and our commitments abroad while supporting the legislation which President Kennedy advocated so strongly. Soon the political parties will resume campaigns for the 1964 presidential nominations. Though the picture is now different, the bandwagons will roll on.

Another result of President Kennedy's death is the reaffirmation of the American spirit. The idea of "The King is dead, long live the King!" has been adopted, and Americans, though still shocked, are eager to support the new President, to face reality, and to welcome responsibility.

A President is killed, so a nation mourns and questions her morals. But hope, assurance, and faith persist; the continuity of the government of the United States and the willingness of the American people to accept reality and look to the future have been recognized by the rest of the world and, most importantly, by Americans themselves.

The American Field Service

The American Ambulance Field Service began in a very small way shortly after the beginning of the First World War in 1914 with a little band of Americans who were in Paris at the time. Having in mind the tens of thousands of young Frenchmen who had crossed the ocean in 1777 to aid us in our revolution, and wishing to reciprocate in some small way, these men uncrated ten Ford chassis which had been donated to the cause, made ambulance bodies out of the crates, and offered their services to the French transport. As more and more donations came in, they were assigned in groups of five to existing units of the French to help unload the hospital trains and ferry men back from "postes" near the front which was rapidly approaching Paris.

After eight months of this sort of work the first complete unit of ten ambulances was sent to the French front in the Vosges Mountains. Here they performed such outstanding work that the commanding officers requested an additional ten. This unit was able to penetrate the mountain trails where larger transport could not go and over which the wounded had been brought out by mule. These trails were so narrow that one travelled up by one and down by another and so steep that one drove both ways in low gear; those model T's had only two gears. Coming down, the low gear served as a sort of brake and so saved wear and tear on brake linings. It was in this section that Stephen Galatti, the present director, began his service to the AFS nearly 50 years ago.

By the end of the first year there were sections at Dunkirk, in Lorraine, and in Alsace. The second year saw three more added. By October 1916 there were eleven sections in the field. Men were volunteering from all over the country; often schools and colleges would organize a whole section of 20 drivers. Sections were sent to Italy and Greece. Soon the number of volunteers outran the donations of ambulances and many men saw service in Motor Transport units.

The interest of all those who served with the AFS never lagged so that when the Second War came along in 1939 there was an immediate revival of the Ambulance Service. This continued interest in foreign service and people would not die after 1945, and the result was the beginning of an exchange program among our young people.

Most of us know about the American Field Service program, perhaps in a vague sort of way. Over 2800 boys and girls from some 60 countries all over the world are with us this school year, some in boarding schools but the large majority attending high schools and living in homes as members of the family. Many of you know them back in your home towns. We have sent 265

Gallery Displays Italian Drawings, Vinyl Plastic Paintings By Morera

Since December 4 the Swetzoff Gallery of Boston has displayed in the Hilson Gallery 20 drawings by Italian masters of the post-Renaissance period and several examples of modern art in the form of Gabriel Morera's vinyl plastic "paintings." This exhibition will last until December 17 and is open to students, faculty, parents, and friends from two until five o'clock each day.

Venezuelan Artist Uses Plastic

The most unusual works of art in this showing are those of Morera. They have a washed canvas base upon which the artist has applied several layers of vinyl plastic, oil, and casein. It is the art form known as collage, an agglomeration of fragments fastened to a canvas in an artistic arrangement. As a final step the artist painted the fragments with contrasting colors, the result of which is a striking piece of modern art. These works provided a marked contrast with those of the 17th-century Italian artists also exhibited in the show.

Morera, though a Spaniard by birth, is a Venezuelan citizen and is presently living in the United States at Peterboro, New Hampshire. He studied in the Circulo de Bellas Artes in Madrid before moving to Venezuela in 1954. Since his first one-man show in Paris in 1955, he has had several other shows in Caracas and Paris, and his art is presently being shown at the Swetzoff Gallery in Boston.

Works Of Jordan, Piccini Shown

There are over 20 drawings in the gallery, most of which were done by 17th-century Italian artists. Outstanding among these are several architects' plans which contain elaborate detail. Also displayed are two grotesque faces by Piccini, an Italian of the Mannerist school. Drawings of a cow and a goat by Jordan, a Frenchman of the Watteau school, are also included.

Regional Educators Convene In Boston For Annual Meeting

Headmaster Frank L. Boyden, Mr. John Boyden, and Mr. Russ Miller attended the 78th annual meeting of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Friday, December 6. The Association, the oldest regional accrediting organization in the United States, was formed to help maintain educational standards by inspecting and evaluating member institutions.

During the morning session the public high schools, secondary schools, and colleges held separate meetings. Dr. Francis Keppel, United States Commissioner of Education, then spoke at a luncheon banquet. Guest speaker at the afternoon business meeting was Dr. Hodding Carter, publisher and editor of the Delta Democratic Times in Greenville, Mississippi.

Presiding over the Association this year is Mr. Frederick C. Copeland, Dean of Admissions at Williams College. In past years the Headmaster and Mr. John Boyden have each held this position.

To understand life one must confront death squarely.
—Professor William Muehl

by David Moyer

Professor William Muehl of the Divinity School in New Haven, Connecticut, spoke on the concept of death, November 24, on a weekend when the idea of death was not peripheral but rather thrust into the middle of our vision. On the day of his inauguration, January 20, 1961, John F. Kennedy wondered how Eisenhower felt as he walked away, abruptly transformed into a private citizen. The new President remarked, "This morning the President of the United States, now . . ." Unfortunately, Kennedy was destined never to realize this feeling. Usually our minds are busy with other thoughts, but it is necessary to realize that not only the aged and infirm die. Professor Muehl added that our idea of death fringes upon life itself, and that to understand life one must confront death squarely. Finally, the speaker concluded, President Kennedy posed the challenge of death by virtue of his unresolved statement quoted earlier.

Discusses Heart Trouble

The Rev. Mr. William H. Crawford, Headmaster of St. Peter's School in Peekskill, New York, discussed the workings of the heart, December 8. Instead of viewing life as a problem, one should regard it as a privilege and a challenge. We must put our heart into every aspect of life; the refusal to work or to involve ourselves in life is an example of heart failure.

The necessary correspondence continued through the opening of school and later. It is only through Mr. Crow's perseverance and attention to details that the symposium is taking place today.

Pocumtuck Gains Ten Contributors In Fall Tryouts

Three weeks ago Alan Cohen, Editor-in-Chief of the Pocumtuck, announced the results of the annual fall tryout for the yearbook's editorial board. Commenting that this was one of the largest turnouts ever, he said that of the 45 candidates competing, the 10 boys selected were Rich Grossman, Norton Grubb, Randy Hack, Peter Halstead, Bill Jerome, Josh Kalter, Oz Latrobe, Alec Megibow, Jim Olson, and Bruce Zuckerman.

The aspirants were given a week and a half to write a 350-word article on Deerfield academics. The article was supposed to describe the subjects offered and to draw a unifying thread through the Deerfield curriculum. In giving the tryout assignment, Cohen stressed the need for originality. He wanted not a class-by-class account but an analysis of the scholastic program and its relation to later life. Mr. Robert Crow, faculty adviser to the Pocumtuck, and the Pocumtuck editors picked the new members.

Sophomore Players To Present Comedy

During the last week of next January My Three Angels, a three-act comedy by Sam and Bella Spewack, will be presented by eight sophomores: Jay Gonzalez, Jed Horne, John Jensen, Bill Kenney, Stim Schantz, Rod Scott, Teri Towe, and Chuck True. These capable amateurs won their positions through competitive tryouts and are now rehearsing under the watchful eye of Mr. Thomas Herlihy. Their production will represent the sophomore class's contribution to an evening of freshman-sophomore dramatics, presented annually.

Academy Seniors Visit Dartmouth College For Interview, Tour, And Alumni Dinner

Immediately following lunch, December 3, 33 seniors climbed aboard a bus for the annual trip to Hanover, New Hampshire, for those who are interested in applying to Dartmouth. Arriving at Thayer Hall about three o'clock, the boys were given a tea, which was followed by a group interview with Mr. Edward Chamberlain, Director of Admissions. After asking him general questions concerning the college, the group adjourned for individual interviews with members of the Admissions Department.

Deerfield Alumni Give Tours

Starting about 4:30, groups of three and four boys joined with Deerfield alumni at Dartmouth serving as guides for a tour of the campus, including a visit to Baker Library with Orozco's frescoes, the impressive Nathaniel Leverone Field House, and Hopkins Center. At six o'clock a reception was held in the Hanover Inn, followed by a delicious roast-beef dinner. This afforded an opportunity for the alumni to reunite with Deerfield faculty and seniors.

The Roaring Cerf

In Defense Of Long Hair

by Jonathan Cerf

A Deerfield senior's characteristic, luxuriant head of hair has been commonly attributed to oversophistication, nonconformity, and laziness. However, these samples of public opinion are quite obviously void of any vestige of veracity inasmuch as they betoken characteristics alien to Academy students.

Every week seniors are given an opportunity to make these appointments before the proletariat get their chance. However, for reasons later to be explained, most seniors recognize not themselves but the freshman as embodying the true essence of the school and accordingly have nobly relinquished their undeserved barbaric rights. Naturally, long hair is the direct and inevitable result of these practices.

There may be a few readers who cannot quite understand why freshmen are so highly regarded. It is true that seniors control extra-curricular activities and athletic teams, but the freshmen in their year of seniority will have these same responsibilities. Therefore the main difference between the two classes is that the freshmen promise not only this one year of leadership but also other years of devoted and loyal support and service. In other words, freshmen do all the things that seniors do and more. It may be argued that many seniors have made similar contributions and should be accordingly rewarded. However, the seniors' efforts were made primarily in the unalterable past, whereas the freshmen's hour is in the undetermined future.

Why then is it the policy of schools and universities to glorify seniors? In many cases the reasoning is undoubtedly to provide some-

5 Lettermen Bolster 1964 Squash Team

Since four out of the first five varsity players are returning, the outlook for a successful 1964 squash season is excellent. First position will be filled by Captain Larry Heath, who has been on the squad since his freshman year. In the second, third, fourth, and fifth positions, respectively, will be Rick Sterne, who placed second in the New York Prep School Invitational Tournament last spring, Dave Mather, and juniors Chick Reutter and Thorn Hart.

Jon Weller, Peter Abrams, Ron Salvati, and Peter Gabel, the first four men on the junior varsity last year, are expected to give the team depth. Although they have played for only one year, their skills have been developed quickly with the help of the j.v. coach, Mr. Hindle.

Will Play Eight Matches

Mr. Reade, who has coached the varsity for the past 12 years, has scheduled matches with such strong rivals as Andover, Choate, Exeter, St. Paul's, and the Amherst, Harvard, Trinity, and Williams freshman squads.

Monday, December 9, Henri Salau '43, top-ranking national amateur squash champion four out of the last ten years and Robert Hetherington '59, number two man last year in national intercollegiate squash competition, played in exhibition matches here for the varsity.

Varsity Hockey Displays Strong Potential; Six Lettermen Return To Form Nucleus

Because of the length of the fall term, the sound of pucks slamming against the boards was heard earlier than usual this year as the varsity hockey team started their drills November 17. The team, consisting of six returning lettermen, including Co-captains Sonny Gibbs and John Heath, will be aided by members of last year's strong junior varsity and supplemented by talented new boys. It will attempt to repeat or better last year's record, which was marred only by a narrow loss to the Andover skaters.

Squad Is Well-Balanced

The Green boasts both a strong, fast offense and a tight defense which possesses scoring ability. The three lines have been arranged from left to right wing as follows: Bob Fredo, Gibbs at center, and Greg Olchowski; Phelps Carter, Carter Jahncke, and Brian Mullany; Bayard Russell, Rick Latham, and Andy Saxon. Heath and Paul Hurley compose the first defensive unit with Tom Echeverria and Kim Morsman alternating with them. Vying for the starting position in the goal are Dave Hagerman and Sandy Tilney, who has shifted this year from his usual wing spot.

Mr. Merriam had an opportunity to evaluate his team before the regularly scheduled games when his boys battled the University of Massachusetts and West Springfield hockey teams in scrimmages December 10 and 13, respectively. The Deerfield skaters will also meet Melrose and attend the Lawrenceville Tournament before Christmas.

Teams To Play In Tournaments

The varsity basketball and hockey teams will compete in pre-season tournaments at Mt. Hermon and Lawrenceville Schools, respectively.

Varsity basketball will play in a round-robin tournament at Mt. Hermon, December 14, and will battle teams from Kimball Union Academy, Choate, and Mt. Hermon in abbreviated games. Losing only to St. Paul's, last year's squad emerged from this tourney with two victories.

The varsity hockey team will initiate its season against Lawrenceville, December 20, in the Lawrenceville tournament. This tourney is designed so that each team will play three games in a span of two days. This year's entries include squads from Andover, Belmont Hill, Choate, Lawrenceville, Nichols, Taft, and the University of Toronto School. Deerfield was unable to attend the tournament last year because the boys would have had to miss five days of Christmas vacation.

Swimmers Are Counting On Depth To Outstroke Powerful Opposition

The Deerfield varsity swimming team has often been known for its depth throughout the system; many meets have been won with few first places, team strength overshadowing individual achievement. This year depth will be the deciding factor throughout the season since only five swimmers are returning from last year's squad, which included seven All-Americans. That team concluded its season with only one dual meet defeat, falling to Williston, 49-46, in a contest which was won in the last relay. Captain Tony

Wilson led the team to a victory in the Trinity Interscholastics and to a close second in the New England Interscholastic Swimming Championships at Andover.

J.V.'s Will Complement Squad

Last year's j.v.'s will fill out this year's squad behind Dick Derricks, Co-captain Dave Hoof, Bruce Kaukas, Eddie Ragland, and Jim Shapiro, the five returning lettermen. Eliot Saltzman, a sophomore, shows much promise in the freestyle, butterfly, and individual medley, while Jim Britt, Joe Devine, Jim Hallagan, Dave Moyer, Dermod Quinn, and Peter Verbeck should provide the added depth and versatility needed to pull the team through its tough schedule.

It is largely due to the efforts of the Messrs. Schell and Cushman, coaches of j.v. and third swimming, respectively, that year after year sub-varsity swimmers are capable of replacing the last year's lettermen on Mr. Boyle's varsity squad. This year's swimmers will face an unusually hard schedule this winter, opening with Worcester and continuing with Andover, Williston, and the Harvard Freshmen, among others.

Ski Team To Have Expanded Facilities

During the past two years the ski facilities at Deerfield have undergone a decided change. Last year saw the completion of the team's first real slalom hill and the occurrence of their first home alpine meet. This year's improvements are even more extensive. Last year's slopes have been enlarged, and a new giant slalom trail has been cut. A jump with a "double take-off" is still being constructed, which will enable this year's team to practice on either a 40 or a 20-meter hill.

Since the varsity lost only one skier, Coach Ruggles is looking forward to a successful season. Captained by Dave Durrance, the team will be led by returning lettermen Bobby Bruce, Dave Higgins, Tom Reynolds, and Barry Simpter, with members of last year's j.v.'s rounding out the squad.

Varsity basketball and hockey teams will compete in pre-season tournaments at Mt. Hermon and Lawrenceville Schools, respectively.

Height And Fast Break To Propel Coach Mahar's Basketball Offense

The varsity basketball team will not only have a new court this season but will be led by a new coach, Mr. Anthony Mahar, who plans to use junior Dave Newmark, 6'10", as center and pivot man. Junior Dave LaPointe, a 6'3" forward, and Jeff Taft, a 5'9" senior guard, have also gained starting berths.

The other guard and forward spots on the starting lineup will be filled by two of the remaining 12 players on the squad. Seniors Doug Amon, Jim Dehlin, Tom Diehl, Joe Marosy, and Doug Mills, and juniors Ed Flickinger and Dan Wilson round out the forward contingent, whose average height is 6'2". Diehl, who is 6'4", will also spell Newmark at center.

Billy Burns, Lowell Davis, Pat Gillespie, and Pete Gilmore, will spark the fast break from the guard positions. Burns is the only returning letterman besides Marosy.

The squad will begin its 16-game schedule January 15 at Suffield Academy. Other games include home and away contests with Choate, Cushing, Kimball Union, Mt. Hermon, Vermont, and Williston, plus single games with Andover and Exeter. Tomorrow afternoon and evening the team will participate in the annual Mt. Hermon pre-season tournament. They will play 20-minute games with Choate, Kimball Union, and Mt. Hermon, who are the other members of the round robin.

New Captains Will Lead Winter Teams In Coming Season

Captains for varsity teams of five winter sports were elected last spring. Leading varsity swimming this season will be seniors Dave Hoof from Annapolis, Maryland, and Chuck Borneman from Elkhart, Indiana. Hoof has been on the team for three years, as has Borneman, a diver.

John Heath '64 of Greenwich, Connecticut, a defenseman with two years of varsity experience, and senior Sonny Gibbs of Greenfield, Massachusetts, a center in his second year with the varsity, are this year's hockey co-captains. Larry Heath '64 from Cedarhurst, New York, is squash captain. He has played four years on the squad and holds the number one position.

Don Campbell '64 from South Yarmouth, Massachusetts, one of two returning members of last year's tumbling team, is captain this year, and Dave Durrance '64, of Aspen, Colorado, heads the ski team. Durrance is an all-event skier with three years of varsity experience.

Basketball Is Undecided

As yet varsity basketball has elected no captain, and Coach Mahar says the team will probably play with a temporary captain for each game. The winter track team, although it has no formal captain, is under the unofficial leadership of Brad Johnston '64, this fall's cross-country captain, from Niagara Falls, New York.

Early Editions Of English Books Are Displayed In Lending Library

The Memorial Building Library is presently exhibiting several first or second editions of books of the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries. The collection contains works of such famed authors as John Milton, Matthew Prior, Jonathan Swift, Oliver Goldsmith, Alexander Pope, and Thomas Otway.

One of the more important books is The Anatomy of Melancholy, by Democritus Junior (Robert Burton). Published in 1660, this volume contains marginal notes of a previous reader; at the time of its popularity the book was a major inspiration for romanticists. Perhaps the most magnificent edition is the beautifully illustrated Poetical Works of John Milton, issued in 1695.

FACULTY OUTLOOK

(Continued from Page 3) to some 21 countries, mostly in Europe, for the year. Last summer we sent over 850 to 33 countries to live with families there. That is a total of almost 3950 young men and women who have the opportunity to spend a lot of time with other young people of their own age.

Last summer there was a conference in Berlin to which about 400 AFS'ers from all over the world came. Among the many features was a series of four "workshops" conducted by our Alan Murray, class of '61. In addition to doing an outstanding job of conducting these workshops, Alan took part in one, attacking the apartheid policy in his native South Africa.

This summer there will be the 1964 convention in New York commemorating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the AFS with 100 Convention Chairmen in countries all over the world. When the week of August 2, 1964, is over, the Convention will have had more than 15,000 visitors, quite a growth from that little acorn back in 1914.

In a match against Mt. Hermon the Chess Club provided Deerfield with the only win of the day after the defeats in football and cross-country, November 16. President Andy Saxon and Vice-President Mark Wallace led their cohorts to an overwhelming victory as Deerfield won four boards, tied two, and lost one, making the final score 5-2. Other Deerfield players were Brad Barton, Jeff Bean, Jon Bernstein, Jon Cerf, and Bruce Hoof.

Academy Introduces Fall Testing Period

Unlike previous years, a fall term examination period was held from Wednesday, December 11, through Friday, December 13, because of a majority vote of the faculty earlier in the spring. In the past each master administered his term test either during a regular class period or on a specified evening.

This new arrangement will eliminate the possibility of a student having to face three or even four big tests on the same day and will provide more studying time. A similar examination period is also scheduled for the end of the winter.
